AAAS 105 Intro to African History MW 12:30 – 1:45 ROB 252 Omwodo
This course introduces the history of the peoples and states of Africa. It begins with African civilizations in ancient times and runs through the present. It concentrates on people and civilizations indigenous to Africa. The origins of Islam, the Atlantic slave trade, and European explorers, missionaries, and colonialism receive attention mainly in their African aspects. The emphasis on Africa in this course provides a valuable alternative perspective on these, and other, seemingly familiar events. During the course we will also discuss historical links between Africa and the Americas, as well as contemporary American attitudes towards Africa, including perceptions and misperceptions in the West. You will leave the course knowing much more about Africa’s history than what you get in newspapers, blogs, and television. This knowledge will be valuable to understand modern Africa and the world where we live. (Same as HIST 104)

AAAS 565 Gender, Culture, and Migration
TR 2:30 – 3:45
This course brings a human face to the 21st century manifestation of globalization by focusing on the issues of culture, gender and migration. How do these three aspects create the "global village" amongst both the host and donor peoples? When people move from one place to another, what do they leave behind, what do they take with them? What is gained, or lost by the host community? What is the impact of migration on a specific group's and individual's sense of identity? How has migration affected the people's construction, understanding, and practice of gender? Given their primary roles in the home and within the culture, these questions and more are posed with particular attention to women. Migration theories, interviews and personal testimonies as well as literary and dramatic works are critical to our analyses of the issues raised and enable us to hold conversations with, and listen to the stories of the ordinary people who make globalization happen and sustain it.
